Problem 1

Alberto Condor has an eye for quality. He recently formed an art gallery where he allows artists to display their artwork for sale. Customers buy the artwork through the gallery, but payments are actually made payable directly to the originating artist. Artists, in turn, pay Albert a 20% commission that is appropriately reflected as revenue of the gallery.

Following is Albert's trial balance after the first year of operation. This trial balance does not reflect the adjustments that are necessary, as described by the additional information.

ALBERT CONDOR ART GALLERY
Trial Balance
As of December 31, 20X8
	Debits	Credits
Cash	$ 64,400	$ -
Supplies	23,765	-
Display equipment	52,500	-
Loan Payable	-	26,250
Capital Stock	-	87,500
Revenues	-	170,065
Rent Expense	38,500	-
Salaries Expense	84,000	-
Interest Expense	1,750	-
Utilities Expense	18,900	-
	$ 283,815	$ 283,815

The Display equipment was purchased near the beginning of the year. It has a 5-year life and no salvage value. Its cost should be depreciated equally over its life.

Albert is entitled to receive $62,650 of commissions for art sold. This revenue has not yet been recorded, but it is fully expected that the artists will soon be making payment.

Supplies on hand at year end were counted, and amount to $11,900.

December's rent of $3,500 has not yet been paid.

- a) Prepare the necessary adjusting entries as of December 31, 20X8.
- b) Use T-accounts to determine the adjusted balances of the accounts.
- c) Prepare the adjusted trial balance for Amber Nestor.

Problem 2

Wolfgang Schnitzer is in charge of financial management for Over-Head-Eye Corp. Over-Head-Eye utilizes satellite technology and sophisticated mapping software to alert its customers to trespassing, illegal dumping, and other encroachments on property these customers own around the globe. Customers typically purchase one-year contracts for this service, and the pricing depends on the number and size of sites monitored.

Mr. Schnitzer desires to review financial reports – an income statement, statement of retained earnings, and balance sheet. Prepare these reports from the following adjusted trial balance. Mr. Schnitzer needs this information for internal review purposes, and does not require a classified balance sheet. The operating data relate to the full year, and the blank worksheet already includes partial data.

Problem 4

Elements is an upscale university housing complex providing all the amenities of private townhouse living, and a full service 24-hour cafeteria for busy students. Prior to recording any adjusting entries for 20X8, Elements has incurred and recorded total salary expense of $2,625,000 and total rental revenue of $14,400,000.

As of December 31, 20X8, the company owes $45,000 of additional salaries to employees, and accrued rent due from residents amounts to $300,000.

On January 10, 20X9, Traditions paid salaries of $120,000 covering the amount due as of December 31, as well as additional amounts relating to 20X9.

On January 15, 20X9, Traditions received rental payments for $750,000 covering the rents due as due of December 31, 20X8, and additional amounts relating to the first half of January, 20X9.

- a) Prepare the necessary year-end adjusting entries for salaries and rent.
- b) Determine the total salaries expense and total rent revenue for 20X4.
- c) Assuming the company uses reversing entries, prepare necessary reversals for early 20X5.
- d) Assuming the company used reversing entries, prepare entries for January 10 and 15, 20X5.
- e) Assuming the company does not use reversing entries, prepare entries for January 10 and 15, 20X5.
- f) Show how 20X5 salaries expense and rent revenue will be the same, whether reversing entries are used or not.

Problem 5

Dingane Ndubizu owns a diamond mining business in South Africa. He is interested in attracting additional investors to obtain financing for planned expansion. Some potential investors have expressed a concern that money is really being sought to address liquidity problems being faced by Dingane's company.

To alleviate this concern Dingane provided the following complete list of assets and liabilities of the company. The currency unit is the South African Rand. Use this information to determine the company's current assets, current liabilities, working capital, current ratio, and quick ratio. Based on your calculations, does it appear that the company is experiencing liquidity problems?

Working Capital:Current Ratio:*Quick Ratio:*Solution 5

		Current Assets	Quick Assets	Current Liabilities
Accumulated Depreciation	R 7,995,750
Prepaid Rent	80,150	R 80,150
Note Payable (due in 3 months)	175,000			R 175,000

Cash	1,382,500	1,382,500	1,382,500
Supplies	235,900	235,900
Unearned Revenues	232,750			232,750
Equipment	15,360,800
Interest Payable	78,750			78,750
Loan Payable (due in 3 years)	2,625,000
		R 2,517,550	R 2,201,500	R 932,750

Working Capital:

Current assets	R 2,517,550
Less: Current liabilities	932,750
	R 1,584,800

Current Ratio:

$$\text{Current assets} \div \text{Current liabilities} \quad R 2,517,550 \div R 932,750 = 2.70$$

Quick Ratio:

$$\text{Quick assets} \div \text{Current liabilities} \quad R 2,201,500 \div R 932,750 = 2.36$$

The ratios do not seem to indicate a liquidity problem. Current assets are almost 3× current liabilities, and a large portion of those assets are in highly liquid items such as cash and receivables.

Problem 6

What if you could build your future and create the future?

One generation's transformation is the next's status quo. In the near future, people may soon think it's strange that devices ever had to be "plugged in." To obtain that status, there needs to be "The Shift".

- d) It is true that the adjustments produce no change in net income. The increase in revenues of $37,500 is exactly offset by the increase in expenses ($12,000 + $4,500 + $11,700 + $9,300 = $37,500). However, the individual accounts would not be correct if the adjustments were not made. It is important that all information be correct, and the adjustments should be recorded.
